

Australia boasts some truly remarkable and indeed unique wildlife and no visit is complete without some form of wildlife encounter. From birdwatching and crocodile-spotting in the Kakadu National Park, to swimming with whale sharks on Ningaloo Reef and walking amongst sealions. You could even head out on a dusk patrol in Tasmania to seek out the elusive Tasmanian Devil. Here, though, this tour takes you to Kangaroo Island where you'll find it has more than its fair share of wildlife.

Often referred to as Australia's 'Galapagos' the natural habitat provides a rich haven for wildlife, some of which can't be found anywhere else on the globe. This two-day experience will showcase not only the island's incredible wildlife but also its dramatic coastline and marine inhabitants. Expect to see koalas, wallabies, kangaroos, echidnas and a diverse array of birdlife.

Day One of the tour focuses on the Flinders Chase National Park home to Remarkable Rocks, an extraordinary granite formation naturally sculpted by the wind over millennia. Admirals Arch is the local hangout for long nosed fur seals and Australian fur seals. On Day Two you'll visit the central Cygnet Valley and then south to Seal Bay where you'll walk through the sand dunes amongst Australian sealions.
