

ALL QUIET ON WESTERN FRONT

by Richard Morrison

The Turkish Fort at Aptera

Over in the west, in the rolling, rural foothills between the ancient port of Chania and the glorious White Mountains, is a Crete that seems frozen in time, along with its unpretentious tavernas, its farming villages, its gorgeous orange groves, its twisting mountain roads, and its secret gorges. To be a tourist here almost seems a crime; you feel that you might somehow dislodge the delicate workings of a society that gives off an aura of absolute tranquillity.

But if you are going to be a tourist, do what we did. Rent a marvellous old farmhouse. We went to an Anglo-Cretan company, Pure Crete, that specialises in using local craftsmen and materials to restore old properties. Our walls were a yard thick; great stone slabs paved the floor; archways and huge urns proclaimed our Grecian surroundings as clearly as the words that drifted up from the people harvesting avocados just below our balcony. Then eat and more importantly, drink - in the local tavernas, where the hospitality flows as freely as olive oil over the feta salad. Walk the lanes which, in late spring, are fringed by as colourful a carpet of wild flowers as anywhere in Europe.

And scramble to the top of one of the great Venetian or Turkish coastal forts - the spectacular Aptera, overlooking the deep blue Bay of Souda, was just a mile or two from where we lived - and watch the sun set on essentially the same scene as the voyaging Ulysses might have enjoyed three millennia ago. Even if you confine yourself to this relatively uncrowded western part of Crete, the contrasts are remarkable.

BOOKING CONDITIONS

1. Booking Procedure – Provisional bookings should be made by telephone to ensure that the accommodation and aircraft seats are available for the dates required. Such bookings will be held for three working days pending the receipt of a completed booking form and the deposit of £250 per person and £70 per hire car week. A higher deposit may be required dependent on your flight carrier, this will be discussed at the time your holiday is reserved. The booking will then be confirmed in writing and a confirmation invoice issued showing the balance due. This must be paid in full not less than 12 weeks before departure. If the balance is not paid by the due date the company reserves the right to cancel the booking and levy cancellation charges in accordance with paragraph 4. For bookings made within 12 weeks of departure, full payment must accompany the booking form. Pure Crete requires that its clients provide their own travel insurance, and that they provide proof of insurance on request from Pure Crete. We also require your passport details for the airline in accordance with the Government's Advanced Passenger Information System. For our privacy policy & how we handle your data please refer to our website.

Changes by you – If you change your booking after the confirmation invoice has been issued (eg name/date change) this must be received in writing & we will charge you £40 per alteration (or £80 within 4 weeks of departure) plus any charges made by the Company's Suppliers (e.g the cost of a new airline ticket if amendment/cancellation fees apply). If your changes are not possible or there is a change of date then the original booking will have to be cancelled & the cancellation charges in paragraph 4 applied.  Please note on some airlines, date changes are not permitted and your flight will have to be cancelled at 100% cancellation charges. Name change charges are subject to your airline's terms and conditions and you will be advised of the amount at the time your booking is amended.

3. Material Alteration – In the unlikely event of Pure Crete having to make a material alteration to your holiday, you will be advised of the change as soon as is reasonably possible. The company reserves the right in any circumstances to alter or cancel a flight. A material alteration is considered to be a change in airport, resort area, change of flight times by more than 12 hours. Should a material alteration or cancellation become necessary, you will have the choice of (a) Accepting the alternative arrangements (b) Choosing another available holiday from our programme or (c) Cancelling with a full refund. Should you accept any of these alternatives, no other claims for compensation or expenses will be considered unless we notify you of material alterations /cancellations within 8 weeks of departure. In this case, we will pay compensation of £10 per person. No compensation or claims will be considered in the event of alteration / cancellation due to force majeure events. (see condition 9).
